Sovereign Citizen Awareness and Responses for Law Enforcement

Frankfort Police Department,
20602 Lincoln-Way Lane, Frankfort, IL 60423

Tuesday; June 11, 2019

8:00 am till 4:00 pm

This course complies with the guidelines of the following mandate(s): Procedural Justice
Legal Updates | Civil Rights | Constitutional & Proper Use of LE Authority

Course Description: It is crucial that U.S. law enforcement is made aware of the dynamics of the threat of sovereign citizens and craft solutions to combat this growing homeland security challenge. The eight-hour, in-service program, Sovereign Citizen Awareness and Responses, addresses this timely topic as noted below.

According to various estimates, there are several hundred thousand sovereign citizen adherents in the United States, a type of anti-government extremists. These individuals believe that the U.S. federal government is illegitimate and that they are "freemen," outside the control of government. Sovereign citizens eschew all affiliations and interactions with the federal government, while giving primacy to the power of the county law enforcement official, the sheriff.

In the past several years, sovereign citizens have increasingly been involved in criminal activities nationwide, including fraud as well as threats and violence against government officials, particularly law enforcement. Among the more prominent examples of sovereign citizen violence against law enforcement are the: 2014 killing of two Las Vegas Police Department officers by Jerad and Amanda Miller, 2012 killing of two sheriff's deputies in Louisiana by a family-linked sovereign citizen cabal, and the 2010 killing of two West Memphis police officers by father-son team Jerry and Joe Kane. These murders are indicative of the types of threats law enforcement faces from sovereign citizens for more than three decades, which arose with the sovereign citizen progenitor, the Posse Comitatus group.

There are disparate indicators that law enforcement should be aware of in relation to sovereign citizens. Among the indicators are: symbols, language (oral/written), fraudulent documents, fictitious organizations, mannerisms, expressions, items (e.g., fake driver's licenses, license plates, social security cards), anti-government signs, fences/barbed wire, and security cameras at property owned by sovereign citizens. Knowledge of these symbols and mechanisms to respond to them can aid law enforcement's efficacy and safety.
